Memphis, Tenn., May 24 — (AP) — The government called more Oklahoma FBI agents to the stand today in its drive to convict seven men of possessing $22,000 worth of stolen whisky.

Two witnesses told the jury yesterday they bought whisky trucked from the dry Oklahoma from here, and the government said that whisky was part of the stolen shipment.

Witnesses, R. O. Burks and D. Rocker, said the FBI contacted them "unloaded portion" of the shipment after tracing the shipment from them.

The prosecution linked one of the defendants to the whisky through the testimony of Cecil Smith, of Cairo, Ill., a self-styled liquor runner.

Combs said he delivered 114 cases of whisky to Burks, transporting the load in a septic tank truck with the assistance of Horace Twitty of Memphis.

U.S. District Attorney Thomas C. Edwards said the 144 cases Combs picked up were part of the cases of whisky hijacked by an armed band of men Dec. 31 on a highway near Cairo, Ill.

In earlier testimony, the government sought to prove the stolen whisky was brought here, unloaded at a farm owned by W. J. Harris, one of the defendants, and repackaged for resale.

Besides Twitty and Harris, defendants are: Napoleon Maxwell, W. M. Pegram, Anderson Haynes and John A. Pearson — all of Memphis — and Gordon A. Tinsley, a Louisville, Ky., restaurant operator.

Combs said one load of whisky bought for Tulsa was driven into Arkansas by Twitty, where he took over, drove on to Tulsa, and sold the cargo to Burks for $5,800.

He said a second load he and Twitty were taking to Tulsa was abandoned near Conway, Ark., because someone was following their truck.

McCarthy to Reveal Part of U. S. Files

Washington, May 24 — (AP) — Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today he has decided to make public copies of "pertinent parts" of government "loyalty" files "having a bearing on the Owen Lattimore case."

McCarthy said in a statement in the papers would "expose deception, fraud and deception" on the part of the state department.

He said he has photographic copies of the files and would make them public when he speaks in Rochester, N. Y., tomorrow night. He will address a convention of Catholic editors.

McCarthy has charged that Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins university professor and occasional consultant to the state department on "Eastern affairs," is Russia's spy in this country. Lattimore has denied that charge under oath and also has denied that he is or ever has been a Communist.

McCarthy told reporters today that the files he intends to disclose are from the "loyalty" records of the old office of war information. He said the original documents now are in possession of the state department.

Lattimore served during part of the war as deputy director of the OWI in charge of Pacific operations.

The state department has said that Lattimore never was on its payroll and that it therefore has no loyalty file on him.

South Africa Building Up Uranium Field

Pretoria, Union of South Africa, May 24 — (AP) — South Africa is building up to a highly secret uranium industry in her rich gold fields.

The union government has launched a production project designed to extract uranium from the nation's gold production. If South Africa's gold production, by-products of the nation's gold production, if South Africa's expectations are fulfilled, the output may keep the West supreme in production of atomic energy.

The secret experiments are underway in a number of pilot plants along the rich Witwaters Rand gold reef, the vast deposit which extends south and west of Pretoria to Johannesburg.

Governor's Race May Bring Record Vote

Little Rock, May 24 — (AP) — Possibility of a hot governor's race may produce a record turnout of voters in Arkansas' Democratic primary elections this summer.

A total of 488,255 persons paid their poll tax entitling them to vote in the 1950 primaries. This is 24,000 more than were eligible to vote in the 1948 primary elections.

Those eligible to vote in Arkansas this summer, you had to pay your poll tax before Oct. 2, 1948.

But now many voters will pay their poll tax before the general election, Oct. 1. Poll tax payment was made Oct. 2, 1949, through Oct. 15, entitling electors to vote in the next general election.

NEWTON COUNTY, ARKANSAS PICTORIAL SPOT

Above right is one of many quiet pastoral scenes in a county famed for its scenic beauty. Below right, is a scene inside famed Diamond Cave near Jasper, Newton County. The cave has long been of interest to thousands of visitors, and has many unusual and beautiful formations of crystal-like rock. Newton County as a whole provides one of the last frontiers of scenic grandeur in the U. S. It is almost completely devoid of displays of modern-day advertising.

Seven Killed in Scottish Trolley Wreck

Glasgow, Scotland, May 24 — (AP) — A speeding trolley crashed into an overturned double-decker bus, killing seven persons and injuring 48 here today.

The bus, loaded with work-bound people, overturned in the path of the trolley at the height of the morning rush hour. The trolley, also crowded, crashed through the roof of the bus and imbedded itself in the ceiling of the lower deck.

A girl, about 17 years old, and six men are killed. Twelve of those injured were reported in a serious condition.

"The bus went over on its side with a crash," said Alec Carmichael, one of the uninjured passengers on the lower deck of the bus, about like "ninipins."

"The passengers were thrown about like ninipins."

"Almost immediately there was another violent crash as the tram (trolley) plowed into the bus roof. I heard screams coming from the upper deck and the crunch of twisting and breaking glass and metal work."

"Then just above my head I was horrified to see the driving cabin of the tram car pierce through the ceiling of the lower deck."

Doctors and nurses gave morphine to the injured, sobbing and screaming in the ruins, while workmen burned away the tangled steel with oxyacetylene burners to get them free. Most of the dead and injured were on the second deck.

Hundreds of horrified onlookers helped in the rescue and treatment of the passengers before police cordoned off the area. A priest hurried from a nearby Roman Catholic church to administer last sacraments in the wreckage.

The bus driver groped out of his smashed cab and tried to tear open the sides of the bus with his bare hands to free the injured.

Wallace Party Group Pickets White House

Washington, May 24 — (AP) — Members of Henry A. Wallace's progressive party gathered today for the announced purpose of picketing the White House for a fair employment practices commission bill. Meanwhile, the controversial aside in the senate.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois, blocked by southern opposition in an attempt last Friday to bring the bill up for consideration, said he would try again in the next two or three weeks.

He announced it will conduct a "people's vigil" at the White House beginning today (11 a. m. EST) and continuing "until FEPC is voted upon."

Senator Hill (D-Ala.), who helped block the move to end debate on the measure, predicted the bill will not pass at this session of congress. It provides for a federal against job discrimination based on race, creed or color.

Progressive party members said Paul Robeson, Negro singer; Elmer Benson, a former governor of Minnesota and C. B. Baldwin, national secretary of the party will take part in a marathon demonstration in support of the bill.

The party charged in its statement, issued yesterday, that both "have consistently and brazenly flouted" their platform pledges "to guarantee Negro citizens and members of minority groups an equal opportunity to work and be promoted xxx."

"The Truman Democrats," it said, "have become the willing parliamentary and political captives of their sham-battle 'opponents,' the Dixiecrats and the Republican reactionaries."

Mr. Truman has called repeatedly for passage of the measure, but has gotten nowhere.

FBI Roundup Hailed by Atom Chief

Washington, May 24 — (UP) — Congressional atomic experts, hailing the arrest of Harry Gold, looked forward today to an FBI roundup other U. S. associates of the British Communist spy, Dr. K. E. J. Fuchs.

Rep. James E. VanZandt (R-Pa.) a member of the joint congressional atomic energy committee, said Gold's capture "probably is the first of a series of arrests that may take place" as the result of the FBI's investigation of Fuchs' international espionage ring.

"We know definitely that there are others involved," VanZandt said. "It's just a question of the FBI getting them. They've been working on this for months."

"I think the arrest of Gold will take us further in this espionage effort and maybe allow us to determine just how much information was turned over to the Russians."

The LONESOME BRIDE

THE STORY. When Gloria Brown, bride of four months, learns from Mrs. Benson, her next door neighbor, how to make apple pie, she lands squarely in the middle of a murder case. The beautiful of a murder case. The beautiful of a murder case. The beautiful of a murder case.

... ignoring traffic with terrifying nonchalance.

"Next time," she shivered as he came up, grinning, "wait for the light so I won't have a heart attack. Why, Sammy! Are those for me? You shouldn't have spent your money."

HE was holding out to her in his small grimy hand a twist of once-white paper from which protruded the heads of two wilted, bedraggled carnations, one white and the other pink. "I didn't," he confessed. "There's a guy with a pushcart gives 'em away nights when he can't sell 'em. They looked good this morning but— you're kind'a late today, ain't you?"

Before she could answer, a noisy argument broke out on the sidewalk behind them and they turned to watch a girl in pink slacks very light across the seat and wearing a sassy blouse that hid very little trying to yank her arm away from the grip of a small man in a gray suit. Gloria recognized the man. It was the little janitor.

"Aw, it's only Sal," Sammy said. "She's always getting coked up and making a fuss and the flatties haul her in."

Flatties. So the little janitor was a cop, Gloria thought. Could he be by any chance be the plainclothes man the lieutenant had sent to follow her?

"Leggo my arm," the girl was screaming. She had hair golden on top and black at the roots.

The officer looked down the block at the policeman controlling traffic and then as it suddenly conscious of the gathering crowd and of Gloria and Sammy watching him, he dropped the girl's arm, walked off, scowling.

"You mean," Gloria asked Sammy, horrified, "she takes drugs?"

"It ain't nothing," Sammy insisted. "She'll sleep it off." He was almost blubbering and suddenly Gloria knew why; he'd waited all day to give her his

DOROTHY DIX

Choosing a Mate

Dear Miss Dix: There is so much written on how to attract and hold a husband and therein much written on how to attract and marry a man or woman with means that are unnatural, that marriage is doomed because we cannot be unnatural all the time. If we are sloppy or spendthrifts, ill-tempered or drunkards, we should attract some one on our own plane. On the other hand, too many marry just to be married, without holding to their ideal. If we go downtown to buy a dress or an automobile and let the clerk talk us into buying something different from that which we had in mind, the chances are we will be dissatisfied. The same holds true with husbands and wives.

GERTRUDE

Answer: In our sober moments, before we have taken a draught of the intoxicating elixir of love, all of us have worked out of a pattern of the man or woman we would like to have some day for a husband or wife. We know what would suit us in a mate. Qualities he or she would have to be congenial, what characteristics he or she would have to have to hold our respect and affections.

Don't Follow Through

A girl thinks that when she chooses a husband he will be a man of character and dignity, the sort of man who is respected by other men. A boy thinks that he would like a wife who would be a good housekeeper, one who would be thrifty and a good manager, who would feed him well and save his money. And then the girl runs across some handsome good-for-nothing with a way with him and she marries him. Or the boy meets some pretty girl who rolls her eyes at him and he falls for her and marries her. Then when they have got their bargains home and have had time to look them over carefully, they find that they don't suit at all. It is marvelous the ones who fire our fancy for the moment instead of the ones who come up to our ideals, that is responsible for most of the failures in marriage.

What you say about the difficulty of keeping up a pretense in marriage is also true. No man or woman, for instance, can keep up the role of lover year after year, if he or she does not really care for the one to whom he or she is married. You can't refuse warmth into duty kisses nor put real feeling into forced caresses.

But there are a lot of things that a man or woman can deliberately do to keep the love fires burning. They can put fuel on the flame by showing each other affection; by considering each other's tastes; by handling each other with diplomacy, by taking as much pains to entertain each other as they would strangers upon whom they wished to make an impression.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 21 years old and have been having a love affair with a married man. He is the father of two children and has a wife who is most attractive and devoted to him. At first I led him on against his will. I knew all about his wife and children, but I did not care and won him away from his wife. Now he is crazy about me and wants to divorce his wife and marry me, but somehow I have come to realize just what I am doing to his children, so I told him that things had to stop and I wanted him to give me up. I still love him, but feel that this sacrifice must be made. I am willing to make it, but he is not. What shall I do?

ISHTAR

Answer: The tragedy of every divorce is the children. Children need a settled home and a sense of security in which to grow up,

Homosexuals Get Little Sympathy

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 4 —(AP)—What is a man, homosexual and is there any cure for him? This story will try to answer that, but only in a limited way. On this subject, medical science is limited.

American society condemns homosexuality. But it not only has not found a 100 per cent cure for it, it can't even agree on the cause.

A homosexual can be a man or woman. A homosexual is one whose sexual desires are for a person of the same sex.

Heterosexual is the normal state for a man whose sexual desire is for a person of the opposite sex.

Some people are both homosexual and heterosexual. They're called bisexual. They have desires for their same sex or the opposite sex.

Two Republicans, Senator Wherry of Nebraska and Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, have denounced homosexuality among government employees.

Washington police estimate that there are 5,000 homosexuals in the capital and that about 3,750 of them work for the government. Wherry has demanded a senate investigation.

Meanwhile, government agencies have been firing homosexuals any way. The state department alone fired 91, both men and women. The state department figures that everything connected with its business, or may, involve national security.

And it thinks homosexuals are a security risk for this reason.

Homosexuals, because of American society's attitude toward them, don't advertise their abnormality to their employers.

So a homosexual lives in constant fear of exposure, particularly when it may cost him his job.

Many homosexuals pay blackmail to people who have discovered the truth about them and demand payment under threat of exposure.

A state department homosexual, if he got into the hands of an enemy agent, might be blackmailed into giving important information.

(State department officials say none of their 91 fired homosexuals were blackmailed although some ran around with suspicious people.)

Other agencies, which don't deal in security matters at all, fired homosexuals on the grounds that they're "unsuitable" for government work.

Many homosexuals have been fired that doesn't mean all homosexual government workers have been discovered.

The reason is simple: It isn't always easy to tell who is a homosexual. One may be clearly so because of his aggressive or brazen conduct, his overt acts.

Another may be so discreet or self-controlled that he could work in an office with other people for years without ever being suspect.

One man may be built, and look, like a football player, and even talk like one but secretly is a homosexual. Another, with seemingly feminine ways, may not be homosexual at all.

Even a married man with five children may be a homosexual, a man who, perhaps, discovered his homosexuality long after his marriage.

Doctors disagree on the causes of homosexuality. These are the explanations:

1. Some doctors believe a person is born a homosexual because of some defect in his physical makeup. 2. Others think it may be the result, not of birth, but of some experience which has had a psychological effect. For example, an emotional shock in some early sex experience that turned a man away from normal sex feelings and he was a child.

3. Others believe a homosexual may get that way from either abuse. He's born one or he becomes one through a psychological experience.

What of the treatment? Can a homosexual be cured? Some can, some can't. It depends on the individual.

Take a man who became homosexual through some early psychological shock. Psychiatric treatment, by dredging up out of his unconscious the true cause of his dilemma, may help him overcome it.

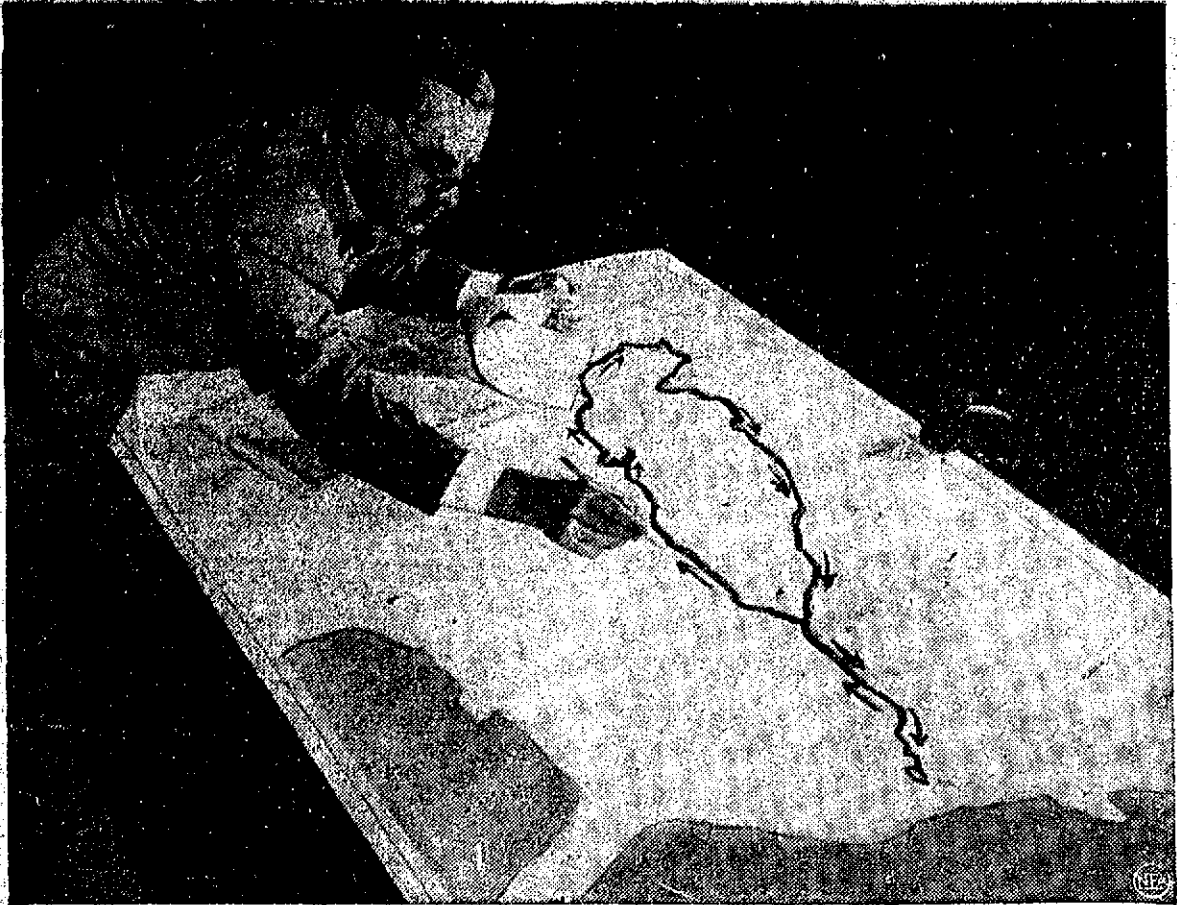

Another may not respond to such treatment at all. And he certainly won't respond if he doesn't want to. Some homosexuals prefer to be that way.

In the meantime, a homosexual thrown out of a government job, probably has a tough time finding work elsewhere. So, although American society condemns a homosexual, it hasn't done much about helping him.

Midwest Finally Getting Some Warm Weather

By The Associated Press

The Midwest finally is getting some warm weather. It was not in many parts of the midcontinent yesterday and the forecast was for more midsummer temperatures today.

The warm breezes from the Gulf produced temperatures in the high 80's and 90's in many cities—the warmest day of the season.

The mild weather extended into the eastern section of the country Plains and the Northern Rockies and were at seasonal levels in the southeastern states.

It zoomed to 99 at Tyndall, S. D.; 94 at Huron, S. D., and Sioux City, Ia.; 92 Garden City, Kan.; 91 at St. Louis and 87 at Chicago, new high marks for the season.

There were showers or thunder-showers today over the eastern parts of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota, northwestern Wisconsin, the middle Ohio river valley and the northern Rockies. The rest of the country had fair weather.

Leaps From a Bridge, Many Look on

Chicago, May 23 —(AP)—Hundreds of homeward bound workers looked on yesterday as a 27-year-old man leaped from the Michigan avenue bridge in to the Chicago river and was pulled out by policemen.

Two bridegrooms spotted Vito awarded the Legion of Merit, after the war, by President Truman.

Recalled from India by the British Labor government, which he differed on questions of policy, Wavell had time to pursue interest normally not associated with a hard-bitten field marshal. A lover of poetry, he edited an anthology of verse, "Other Men's Lowers", which was widely acclaimed. He was fond of poetry that "sings."

Late in 1949 Wavell visited Canada on the invitation Canadian veterans. He attracted attention at Ottawa by saying that in his opinion Germany remains a greater menace in Western Europe than Russia. He described Germany as a "convicted criminal" but observed that so far Russia had merely "committed loitering with intent."

In the Far East, as a military commander and a political leader, he played a role in the war against the Japanese which was deeply appreciated in America. Wavell was

Little by Little Russia Is Closing Satellite States to Influence From the West

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
(For DeWitt MacKenzie)

Little by little the Kremlin appears to be shutting its captive states in the middle Europe away from whatever influence the West could spread in the area.

The final result could be that Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria will talk to the outside world only through spokesmen at Moscow.

No one in Washington, and in particular at the state department, will stand such a gloomy prediction. But state department people will acknowledge that over the past two years the Communist governments of middle Europe have made it increasingly difficult for American diplomats to carry on their business.

This is the way the score now stands: U. S. diplomats have left Bulgaria, and the Bulgarians have left the U.S.

Poland has demanded that the U.S. cut its Warsaw embassy staff of military attaches by 40 per cent. Czechoslovakia has demanded that we get wothirds of our embassy staff out of there.

Romania wants us to cut our staff. Hungary makes the same demands.

When a country makes demands like this, diplomatic procedure requires that they be met. But because of restrictions the Soviet governments have thrown around the staffs we have had there, these cuts won't really amount to much.

The restrictions vary in the various nations. But all say that American diplomats can go only certain distances from their embassies and that they must ask permission before they do. When they get permission they are followed by secret police.

What do we do in retaliation? Some of the satellite Communist states have been sent home. But even as this column is written a Communist from the Hungarian legation could get on a train at Washington — without any special permission — and go to San Francisco if he wished. Whether any one would be the wiser, no agency in Washington will say.

Bulgaria is the single nation under the Kremlin thumb from which we have pulled out completely. That happened on Feb. 24, after a great deal of provocation.

The American staff there had found it more and more difficult to work. Then the American minister, Donald Heath, was accused of being a "spy" and Washington broke relations. Bulgarians here were asked to get out. They did.

The cut that Poland has asked will reduce military personnel from 10 to four officers. Our representatives in Poland will be cut from 61 in all to 55. Poland has 71 diplomatic representatives here.

Romania has asked that we cut our staff of about 15 people to 10. Hungary has asked a "drastic cut" of our staff of about 35 Americans and something under 100 Hungarian employees.

Both Hungarians and Romanians have only skeleton staffs in Washington, and no one hears much from them.

Gen. Wavell of Britain Succumbs

London, May 24 —(AP)—Viscount Wavell, the one-eyed British field marshal who crushed Italian armies in Africa 10 years ago, died today.
